

La proposition relative : apporter un complément d'informations

La proposition relative apporte une information supplémentaire sur l'antécédent. Elle est introduite par un pronom relatif.

La nature de l'antécédent (humain ou non humain) et la fonction du pronom relatif (sujet ou complément) déterminent le choix du pronom relatif :

- antécédent humain : on emploie who quand le pronom relatif est sujet et that ou Ø quand il est complément.
- antécédent non humain : on emploie which ou that quand le pronom relatif est sujet, ou which, that ou Ø s'il est complément.

1- Complétez les phrases avec le pronom relatif qui convient

- a- The people..... I talked to told me they were shocked by the amount of food that is wasted
- b- A law forbids supermarkets to throw away unsold food has helped reduce waste
- c- The Danish, care more than many about recycling food, are an example to follow.
- d- The congressmen don't seriously tackle the issue of hunger in deprived areas, is a pity
- e- The charities I am a member of organise free meals for Christmas.

2- Reliez les phrases à l'aide d'un relatif.

- a- The Red Cross is a charity. It distributes recycled food.
- b- This is my sister. She is very cautious about not wasting anything. She brings the leftovers to her neighbours. They are always very thankful.
- c- The food bank is five minutes away from my home. It distributes food boxes
- d- I always bring 5 kilos of potatoes. It helps to feed a whole family
- e- I knew these volunteers. They don't consume all their food. They recycle some food.